Sauder Village®

Archbold Ohio
Welcome

Sauder Village is excited to welcome the Association for Living History, Farm and Agricultural Museums Annual Meeting and Conference to Archbold, Ohio.

Sauder Village was the dream of Erie J. Sauder, founder of Sauder Woodworking Company. Despite only having an eighth-grade education, Mr. Sauder knew the importance of a good education and the lessons that the history of Northwest Ohio could teach. By the late 1960s, Erie was nearing retirement and began in earnest to create a place where children could learn about the region’s history. As he collected objects and buildings, his dream began to grow in scale, and we are proud to expand on his dream as we use the living history setting to educate guests about the diverse history of the Great Black Swamp. As Erie stated, “You can put all of this history in books, and it will never talk like the tangible history will.”

This year’s conference is full of both minds-on and hands-on opportunities for learning. As the whole conference is on site at Sauder Village, we hope you’ll immerse yourself in the site and all it has to offer.

We look forward to giving you a warm Midwestern welcome as you join us at Sauder Village in Archbold, Ohio.

Off-Site Educational Opportunities
All vans will leave from the Sauder Heritage Inn at the start time listed.

7:00am – 6:00pm
Joint Oxen-Handling Workshop - ALHFAM & Midwest Ox Drover’s Association (MODA)
Cost: $60; Lunch included
Minimum: 6
Maximum: 11
Join MODA at their annual meeting being held at Tillers International for a day filled with oxen-handling information. Along with increasing your oxen-handling knowledge, this program will allow ALHFAM and MODA members to meet and build relationships and learn more about Tillers unique educational facility.

8:00am – 5:00pm
Rutherford B. Hayes Presidential Library and Museum
Cost: $68; Lunch included
Minimum: 12
Maximum: 22
Embark on a series of behind-the-scenes tours through key parts of the Hayes Presidential Library & Museums’ operations, including the 31-room Hayes home, artifact and manuscript storage, a new exhibit on Arctic exploration, and a special look at the 25-acre grounds. Your tour leaders will be seasoned staff members, eager to discuss such topics as dealing with controversial political history, balancing throngs of guests with site preservation, finding the silver lining of a worldwide pandemic, and our strategies for reaching new audiences. This experience will also include time to explore the museum on your own, and a buffet lunch with a snappy round of presidential trivia.

The Sustainable Farm Staple of the 1930s: Corn
Cost: $75; Lunch included
Minimum: 6
Maximum: 22
Attendees will gain an understanding of all the steps involved in a full-year’s cycle of growing corn, using 1930s techniques. Learning take-aways include picking the right plate for a corn planter; the importance of straight rows; the concept of check-row planting; creating good rows of corn shocks; how to arrange/set up belt-driven equipment; safety factors using belt-driven equipment; saving seed; basics of PTO-driven equipment. Attendees should also gain an idea of time commitment required in different periods of the year, to help when deciding if adding corn is viable with current staff/volunteers.
Connecting Local Stories to the Larger National Narrative: Behind the scenes of Heritage Sylvania & National Museum of the Great Lakes
Cost: $50 Lunch on your own
Your choice of local restaurants within easy walking
Minimum: 10 Maximum: 22

In this unique experience, you’ll learn how two history sites share the impact of their local stories on national events. The first stop will be the historic Lathrop House in Sylvania, Ohio – the only Underground Railroad station in this region open to the public. Dr. Janet Rozick and Executive Director Andi Erbskorn will give you a behind-the-scenes tour of the partially restored site and share new insights based on recent research into the important and complex role Northwest Ohio played on the route from enslavement to freedom. Following lunch, we will travel to the National Museum of the Great Lakes where museum administrators will provide you with a truly one-of-a-kind behind-the-scenes experience. Set foot in spaces typically off-limits to visitors in an exclusive tour of the Col. James M. Schoonmaker Museum Ship, the Museum Tug Ohio and the St. Marys Challenger Pilothouse. Take a deeper dive into the ships’ inner workings and visit “hard-hat” only locations.

Please note that these spaces are difficult to access. The tour will include a lot of climbing of steep and narrow stairways and bending to accommodate for low head room. We encourage you to dress appropriately including wearing closed-toed shoes, long pants, and clothes you don’t mind getting dirty. We will provide hard hats and any other safety necessities.

The Old Northwest Territory at the Confluence of the Three Rivers
Cost: $56 Lunch on your own at Don Hall’s Old Gas House Restaurant
Lunch menu: www.donhalls.com/the-gas-house
Minimum: 10 Maximum: 22

Join us as we travel to Fort Wayne, Indiana, to visit three locations to learn about the area’s importance and history in the Old Northwest Territory. First, we will visit the home of Chief Jean Baptiste De Richardville whose home built in 1827 is recognized as the oldest Native American structure in the Midwest and a unique example of a treaty house. Typically staffed by local members of the Miami Nation, learn how they present their history and perspective through hands-on activities and interaction with guests along with learning about the architecture of the house. Afterwards participants will travel to the reconstruction of the third U.S. fort built at this strategic military location where the St. Mary’s and St. Joseph’s Rivers meet to form the Maumee River with its short portage to the Little (Wabash) River and its links to the Mississippi. Reenactors will address the history of the forts as well as portray everyday life in the fort. After a break for lunch at the historic Don Hall’s Gas House restaurant, participants will spend time learning more at the Fort Wayne History Center.

Wood County Museum:
Let the Poor House Enrich You
Cost: $75, Lunch included
Minimum: 6 Maximum: 22

Visit the Wood County Museum located in the old Wood County Poor House for a tour of their site including a look at their new collection’s storage spaces. In addition, museum staff along with humanities partners, Nick Pavlik, Center for Archival Collections, BGSU; Alyssa Garland, Carter Historic Farm; and Harold Brown, Wood County Genealogy will have a panel discussion about their collaborative efforts.
Charge Ahead, Under the Glass and Over the Wall:
Fallen Timbers Battlefield & Fort Miamis National Historic Site and Fort Meigs Historic Site
Cost: $98, Lunch Included
Minimum: 10
Maximum: 22

Travel in the footsteps of General Anthony Wayne, the Legion of the United States and Native Americans along the Maumee River corridor. Fallen Timbers was the last major battle in the Indian Wars. The U.S. victory opened the Northwest Territory to settlement as well as profound change over time. While at the battlefield, we will hike to the ravine overlook and back (about one hour) and discuss the site’s program progression plan. After lunch, we will travel to Fort Meigs Historic Site which includes the War of 1812 Museum and a reconstructed wooden walled fort. In addition to learning about the events associated with both sites, join in discussions on adopting twenty-first-century technology and curricula to a nineteenth-century experience, the public’s perception of land usage versus land preservation, and the public’s view of museum financial support.

Helping Hands: Fulton County Historical Society
Sponsored by the ALHFAM’s CPR PIG
Maximum 12

Join members of the ALHFAM’s Collections Preservation and Registration PIG to help the Museum of Fulton County inventory archival material from the county’s townships, including records from one-room schoolhouses. The inventory process will operate in assembly-line fashion, including numbering and scanning/photographing. This volunteer project is free of charge and includes lunch and transportation.

8:45am - 5:30pm
Participants will carpool
(12 miles to Fulton County Fairgrounds)

Visit to the National Thresher’s Association’s 78th Annual Reunion
Sponsored by the ALHFAM’s Machinery PIG
Cost: $5.00 Gate Fee (paid at Fairgrounds)
Lunch on your own with any of the various meal vendors at the show

Spend the day at the National Thresher’s Association 78th National Threshers Reunion. Enjoy dozens of steam engines along with hundreds of gas tractors and gas engines. Participants will enjoy a wide variety of steam engine and tractor activities throughout the day that include sawmilling logs, edging boards, threshing wheat, baker fans, prony-brake-horsepower testing, power eaters, shingle mill, veneer mill, weigh-transfer-pulling sled and plowing (weather permitting). The featured engines of this year’s show will be 11-20 hp. steam engines, John Deere tractors and John Deere gas engines. Participants can return to the fairgrounds after the Salted, Smoked, and Pickled opening reception for the evening “Spark” show if they choose.
Friday, June 23, 2023

On-Site All-Day Educational Opportunities
8:00am – 5:00pm
Lunch on your own at the Sauder Village Barn Restaurant

Draft Horse Workshop
Steve Opp, Historic Farmer, Sauder Village
Cost: $100
Minimum: 4
Maximum: 10

This class will focus on draft horse grooming, handling, hitching and driving skills. The day will begin with a brief history of the Percheron draft horse and how they were used in everyday life. Before heading to the barns for some hands-on experience, participants will learn about grooming practices and types and parts of a harness. Once in the barn, participants will build their confidence with the gentle giants by grooming and harnessing. Then, skills will be honed with simple ground driving and moving up to ground driving through an obstacle course. The day will finish off by enjoying a horse-drawn trolley ride through the Historic Village given by the instructors.

Woodworking for the Historic Farm
Rusty Robinson, Woodworker/Restoration Carpenter
Cost: Free
Maximum: 8

This session is designed to assist both professional and volunteer museum workers in identifying and using hand tools and foot-powered tools in a living-history context. Additionally, the types and properties of wood will be covered in this session. The focus of this information is to provide the skills to share the essential tenets of wood and its historic use on the farm.

Broom Braiding Class
Nancy Lewis, Sauder Village Broom Maker
Cost: $20
Maximum: 6

Have you ever wondered how to put the artistic touch on your broom by creatively making a braided top? Come and experience the joy of taking broomcorn stalks and weaving them into a lovely accent for your broom. Using the different machines in our Broom Shop, learn to braid brooms with a handle as well as how to incorporate the braiding to form the handle itself. Choose either a veggie scrubby, pot scrubby, braided whisk broom or a mini braided decorative broom to make and take home.

Food For Thought: Engaging and Educating Guests Through Historic Foodways
Melissa Vickers, Culinary and Domestic Skills Historian, Strawberry Banke Museum
Cost: $50
Maximum: 10

A hands-on hearth cooking workshop, available to both novice and experienced hearth cooks. Participants will work together to prepare a seasonal dinner, which they will dine upon at the conclusion of the class. The class will teach a basic understanding of reading, scaling, and using historic recipes from the mid-eighteenth to mid-nineteenth centuries, as well as a practical understanding of multiple, essential hearth-cooking methods. Participants will also gain a deeper understanding of how to use historic foodways as a platform for engaging audiences in a variety of important and sometimes difficult discussions and will be able to implement these methods in their respective interpretations.

All participants should wear natural-fiber garments that cover their arms and legs, and their hair must be kept up at all times. They should also come with their own apron and a water bottle. Historic attire is welcome but not required. Additionally, due to local food-handling regulations, participants will be required to sign a waiver, and assist in all food preparation to join in dining on the foods prepared.

Getting the Most Out of Your Bake Oven
Kevin Carter, Interpreter Coordinator, Historical Foodways, Conner Prairie
Cost: $15
Maximum: 12

Whether your site is considering building a bake oven or you’ve had one for years, this workshop utilizes the beautiful bake oven at Sauder Village to demonstrate its amazing cooking utility, how it can be used to support your foodways program, and how it can support other departmental goals within your organization. Due to local food handling regulations, participants will be required to sign a waiver as well as assist in all food preparation to join in dining on the foods prepared.
Friday, June 23, 2023

On-Site Morning Educational Opportunities
8:00am – 12:00pm

Start with the Sloper
Kay Demlow,
Lavender’s Green Historic Clothing
Cost: $10
Minimum: 4
Maximum: 12

We will learn how to develop historically accurate dress bodice patterns based on reference books, original garments, and period photos using a "sloper" (dressmaker’s term for a pattern for any garment that has seam allowances and can be used repeatedly) and a simple method of flat-pattern drafting. Participants will be able to create their own custom-fitted slopers during the workshop.

Introduction to White Coopering
Jonathan Hallman, Master Cooper, The Colonial Williamsburg Foundation
Cost: $25
Minimum: 5
Maximum: 12

This workshop will provide participants with a hands-on introduction to the tools and techniques involved in the manufacture of white cooperage – in this case, a bucket. Participants will have the chance to use traditional cooper’s tools and learn the steps involved in making a bucket. They will practice backing, hollowing, and jointing staves. We will also look at how a bucket is raised, and how the bottom is put in place.

Basics of Coal Forge Blacksmithing
Aaron Hampton, AHH Forge LLC,
Sauder Village Blacksmith
Cost: $75
Minimum: 4
Maximum: 4

This introduction to blacksmithing will teach participants how to light and maintain a coal fire, and how to do some basic blacksmithing. The focus will be blacksmithing methods using a coal forge similar to those utilized in blacksmith shops over time. Participants leave with some projects and basic knowledge of blacksmithing.

NEW PROGRAM

Living History Institute
Organized by Nathan Schultz, Fort Ticonderoga and Debra Reid, The Henry Ford

Joined by Anneliese Meck, Genesee Country Village and Museum and additional invited presenters.
Cost: FREE
Minimum: 5
Maximum: 12
Sponsored by Anonymous

Join in the inaugural Living History Institute (LHI). LHI seeks to provoke a critical analysis of the methods and practices of living history in a discussion-based environment and apply that information. Participants will leave with the tools to critically analyze and refine their own practices. LHI starts with a half-day immersion into living history: its origins, meanings, and methods; pathways into the profession; strategies to introduce or review, revise, and regenerate living history at a site; and strategies to create more complete, inclusive living history.

LHI continues during the 2023 ALHFAM conference with additional sessions and activities:
• Apply lessons learned during the LHI while visiting Sauder Village (Saturday),
• Attend four sessions scheduled during Sunday and Monday’s concurrent session schedule.
  o Controversial but Crucial Conversations--Deirdre Jones Cardwell
  o A New Interpretation for an Old Museum--Tom Kelleher
  o Walking the Walk--Ed Schultz and Dave Fowler
  o Interpreting Challenging Topics: Abortion--Six panelists and a moderator
• Join in discussions about the sessions with the other LHI participants at designated times.
• Participate in a concluding discussion and evaluation to plan future LHI training.

Registrants will receive more detailed information at the time they register, selected readings to complete before the conference and handouts that will guide activities during the conference. Participants receive a certificate confirming completion.

On-Site Afternoon Educational Opportunities
1:00pm – 5:00pm

Distinctive Frocks: Making the 1920s One-Hour Dress to Suit Yourself
Kimberly Wageman-Prack, Nash Farm Coordinator
Cost: $15
Maximum: 12

The One-Hour Dress is the iconic dress pattern of the 1920s. In this session you will draft your personal One-Hour dress pattern, and then we will explore various ways that your pattern can be customized to your individual taste. Using images of real people as well as artistic renderings from the period, attendees will learn how to alter the basic pattern. Time permitting, we may make a small embellishment for your dress.

Introduction to Coppersmithing
Steve Okuley, Surveyor and Coppersmith, Defiance OH
Cost: $20
Minimum: 2  Maximum: 6

Learn to make a copper bowl for a ladle using the basic skills of coppersmithing. We will cut out and free form shape the bowl, smooth and planish. A blacksmith forged premade handle will then be riveted on. We will also discuss annealing and cleaning the copper.

Making a U.S. Sanitary Commission Quilt: Nineteenth-Century Quilt-As-You-Go
Kathy Dickson, Oklahoma Historical Society
Cost: Free  Maximum: 12
Sponsored by Oklahoma Historical Society

Working through the U.S. Sanitary Commission women across the Union produced thousands of quilts for United States soldiers. Most were potholder-style quilts, nineteenth-century quilt-as-you-go. Learn about the work of the U.S Sanitary Commission as you complete one of the 35 blocks needed for a quilt. Attendees will learn how to complete the individual blocks and how to assemble the blocks to complete the quilt. Only basic sewing skills are needed.

Make a Small Market Basket
Anita Mathes, Sauder Village Basket Maker
Cost: $20  Maximum: 12

Learn to weave a small market basket. This highly useful and versatile basket can be made with a variety of color choices. This class is designed for advanced beginners, but all experience levels are welcome.

Exploring the Tools of the Woodworker
Rusty Robinson, Woodworker/Restoration Carpenter
Cost: Free Max 12

Participants will explore the woodworking tools appropriate to the historic period best suited to their site’s needs. This will incorporate the use of basic tools including those for carving, surface preparation and the shaping of wood. If time allows, tool maintenance will be included.

Rediscovering the Forgotten Art of Hairwork
Amy Armstrong, Living History Coordinator at Historic Arkansas Museum
Morgan Weithman, Public Programs Assistant at Historic Arkansas Museum
Cost: Free Max 15
Sponsored by Rebecca Landin, Sauder Village

In the eighteenth century until the dawn of the Victorian era, hairwork was most commonly created professionally by skilled artisans, both men and women, making it an upper-class commodity. By the 1850s, books and magazines such as Godey’s Lady’s Book, provided detailed instructions aimed at the average lady, making hairwork accessible to not only the wealthy but to anyone willing to learn.

As such, hairwork became a highly sentimentalized fashion accessory of the middle-class. With these newfound skills, women had the satisfaction of creating low-cost, meaningful mementos from the hair of their loved ones with the added assurance that precious locks would not be substituted for, or augmented with, another’s hair while in the care of an unscrupulous jeweler.

Lunch Buffet
11:30pm - 1:30pm

Make your way to Founder’s Hall for a soup, salad and sandwich buffet lunch. This is not a formal gathering time, so you are welcome to eat and run or sit back and relax with friends.
Using Woodstove Cooking & Process Demonstration to Engage with Visitors
Susan Odom, Independent Food Historian
Cost: Free  Maximum: 8

Have fun exploring woodstove cooking techniques and 19th century foodways by preparing several historic recipes at the Stuckey Homestead. Discuss the “why” of doing this type of cooking in an historic setting.
Practice process demonstration as a keyway of connecting and engaging with visitors.

Skill Preservation Workshop
Jim Slinling, Tiller’s International
Aaron Hampton, AHH Forge LLC, SV Blacksmith
Cost: $10  Maximum: 12
Sponsored by Silhouettes By Hand

Many historically common activities are no longer in our common vocabulary. Assessing and illustrating the lives of common people who lived in our past is impossible without similar rote skills. Through discussion, demonstration, practice, and using blacksmithing as a case study, this session will explore a system through which consistently accurate and credible work activities within the existing framework of most living-history sites can be performed.

Introduction to Middle Eastern Paper Marbling
John Bielik, Paper Marbler
Cost: Free  Minimum 4  Maximum 12
Sponsored by Sheri Friesner, Sauder Village

This paper-marbling class is intended to be an introduction to Middle Eastern paper marbling. Historically appropriate materials and techniques will be the foundation of our class. This variety of marbling exceeds authenticity requirements for the most demanding historic site. Our class includes a very brief history of paper marbling, the viewing of common objects employing marbled paper, and a discussion and application of basic tools, materials and techniques. There will be plenty of time for each of us to create a variety of patterns that can be used in the future to enhance a multitude of projects.

Tool Sharpening for Woodworking
Jim Crammond, Woodworker & Windsor Chair Maker
Cost: Free  Minimum 4  Maximum 8

In this session, participants will learn how to sharpen hand tools for use. Sharpening is THE gateway to hand-tool woodworking. Many dismiss hand tools, though they have never used one properly fit. Through demonstration and guided practice, the participant will learn to sharpen chisels and plane irons, curved edges such as gouges, and handsaws. Participants will understand how to evaluate the condition of a wood cutting tool, select the proper cutting angle for various purposes, and whet and hone a wide variety of tools for reconditioning or maintenance.

No Stove, Hearth, or Campfire:
Nineteenth and Early-Twentieth Century Historical Alternative Cooking Methods
Marna Jean Davis, Designer/Historian for The Domestic Lady’s Dressmaker
Kimberly Wageman-Prack, Nash Farm Coordinator
Cost: Free  Maximum: 12
Sponsored by Tracie Evans and Gail Richardson, Sauder Village

Lamp stoves, Fireless Cookers, Chafing dishes and more! We will be hands-on preparing a meal using historic alternative cooking methods that are often not interpreted. Learn about the early alcohol stoves, then the appearance of lamp stoves in the 1870s, and onto the 1890’s craze for chafing-dish cooking. We will also look at the fireless cookers that were used to conserve cooking fuel. Boarders or travelers often made use of these portable and efficient cooking methods, as well as housewives wanting to escape the heat of a big stove or to be more efficient with fuel.

Morning 45-Minute Concurrent Sessions
10:15am - 11:00am

Making it Personal: Engaging Visitors’ Imagination and Emotions
Don Allison, Interpreter, Historic Sauder Village

Rejuvenate your interpretation by making it deeply personal. Attendees will learn how to draw details out of historic sources created by white settlers to the Great Black Swamp, and how to turn these into vivid mental images using storytelling techniques. Learn to make the story personal, relate to guests on their level and be alert to historic motivations, fears, hardships, joys and triumphs that spark their interests.

What Can’t Be Cured, Must Be Endured
Clarissa F. Dillon, Ph.D, Independent Scholar

This session focuses on an under-explored topic of colonial life: How did people with disabilities cope in “the world of William Penn” (especially eastern PA, southern NJ, and northern DE)? Dillon will share a range of period sources documenting temporary (deafness from a build-up of earwax) and permanent (amputated limb) disabilities. What did people do? How did they do it? Ultimately, research findings can support guest engagement and site interpretation.

Fermenting the Future: Partnerships between Historic Sites, Breweries and Cideries
Ian Beard, Education Director, Historic Arkansas Museum (Chair)
Vanessa McKuin, Executive Director, Historic Cane Hill
Aaron Loehndorf, Grounds Curator and Collections Specialist, Shiloh Museum of Ozark History

How can historic sites rethink their approaches to local breweries and cideries and create sustainable partnerships? From fossil beds to art nights, anniversary releases to orchards, and trivia to homebrew contests, presenters will examine what programs created meaningful community engagement. They will also explore some pitfalls that might bubble up along the way.

Morning 45-Minute Concurrent Sessions
11:15am - 12:00pm

Not Everyone Celebrates Christmas: Looking at DEAI in a Different Way
Martha Katz-Hyman, Independent Curator

Programming that revolves around Christmas brings large numbers of visitors, significant publicity and needed income to sites. Rethinking holiday programming through the DEAI lens (diversity, equity, accessibility and inclusion) can turn the “sure thing” into a more complex and nuanced program conveying perspectives of residents and surrounding community(ies) and their different religions, viewpoints and celebrations. This is key to making diverse audiences feel welcome during a time of year when feeling excluded is all too common.

Do You Really Know Your Visitors? Identifying the Five Main Visitor Identities to Historic Sites
Rick Musselman, Education Coordinator, Carriage Hill Farm, Five Rivers MetroParks

Knowing your audience is key to making informed decisions about interpretive styles, programming needs and basic customer service. This interactive session will explore John H. Falk’s Five Main Visitor Identities (Explorer, Facilitator, Experience Seeker, Professional/Hobbyist and Recharger). Attendees will use the National Association for Interpretation (NAI) curriculum, to determine how to apply these “identities” to better understand visitors to your site.

Recruiting and Retaining Top Talent at Every Level
Jeani Ringkob, Chief Construction Business Growth Strategist at Story Built Marketing

Businesses that win at recruiting have distinct advantages. By retaining talented staff and building a highly integrated workforce, your museum can reduce expenses caused by high turnover, improve staff morale and coordinate expertise to grow. Recruiting and retaining talented staff, however, has never been more challenging. This session shares talent recruitment strategies and processes that better market staff openings, inform hiring decisions and onboarding processes, accelerate integration and increase retention.
Why Did the Chicken Cross the Road?

Susie Marchand, Agricultural Education Coordinator, Shelburne Farms
Kerry Leigh Burchill, Director, Canada Agriculture and Food Museum, Central Experimental Farm

Why did the chicken cross the road? For farmyard fun that doubles as learning of course!! Join us as we scratch into the cock-a-doodle-DOs of observation games and farm-to-plate connections. Get your visitors off their phones and engaged with the real deal! We'll learn how by applying the RIG (rapid idea generation) Method to turn a few basic farmyard attractions into visitor engagement opportunities and informal science learning. Be prepared to walk the grounds and visit farmyard animals in all weather conditions.

Controversial but Crucial Conversations

Deirdre Jones Cardwell, Programming Lead Actor Interpreter, Colonial Williamsburg Foundation

Have you had to talk about a subject that made you uncomfortable? Have you wondered how to start? This workshop utilizes first-person interpretation as a tool to launch and sustain crucial conversations. Deirdre Jones Cardell draws on fifteen years of researching and portraying enslaved and free black people who lived in Virginia during the late 1700s. She will share tactics to discuss racism, slavery and discrimination, to assess your feelings, to prepare for audience responses and to sustain honest conversations at their own site or museum.

America's Wetlands: Dark History, Brighter Future and the Role Museums Can Play

Mark A. Dilley, Chief Scientist, MAD Scientist Associates, LLC

Wetlands, once considered wastelands, are really among earth’s most productive ecosystems. Yet, centuries of “improving” them by draining them has reduced waterfowl populations and biological diversity, led to falling water tables, increased flooding and runoff that polluted waterways and increased the frequency and severity of harmful algal blooms. This session focuses on wetland “ecosystem services” and how ALHFAM sites can educate the public to catalyze wetland protection in-line with the United Nations’ “Generation Restoration” effort.

I'm Ready for My Close Up: You Can Produce Your Own Videos!

Ron Carnegie, Colonial Williamsburg Foundation

Using your cell phone, you can produce videos and shorts to promote your site, share your interpretation, or make Skill Clips for ALHFAM's STP! Resource Center (Skills Training and Preservation) This session will share the process, discuss some ideas, explain editing, AND provide time for participants to make their own practice STP videos. These skills can be used to make TikTok videos, Facebook Reels or even longer YouTube videos or films to embed on your webpages.

A Hands-on Look at Women’s Mid-Nineteenth-Century Clothing

Tom Vance, Board President, Five Mile House Foundation, and Editor, Midwest Open Air Museums Magazine
Carrie Midura, Coordinator of Historical Clothing, Old Sturbridge Village

Interested in reinvigorating your personal or your site’s period-clothing program based on historic precedent? This session focuses on a private collection of mid-nineteenth-century women's clothing. It starts with a survey of women’s fashions, (1820s-1870s) and surveys techniques essential to examining clothing. Then participants will apply what they've learned. Bring your magnifying glass, take photos, and get answers to questions you may have about improving period clothing from experts in the field.
Afternoon 75-Minute Concurrent Sessions
2:00pm - 3:15pm

Towards a Military Interpretation PIG
Kyna Stys, Director of Education and Museum Programming, National Museum of the Pacific War

Despite the number of sites that include military programs, ALHFAM does not currently have a Professional Interest Group to support this focus area. Join us to meet other practitioners, discuss what a new PIG might aim to accomplish and establish basic parameters and immediate goals for this new PIG.

Wild Hay for the King’s Cattle: A History of Native Grasses in the Upper Great Lakes
Kyle Bagnall, Park Naturalist, Mackinac State Historic Parks

European colonists in Michigan used “wild hay” or “marsh hay” as livestock feed beginning in the eighteenth century. In 1749, Michel Chartier de Lotbinière noted wild hay growing at Mackinac. This forage included native sedges and grasses growing in wetlands that covered over 10 million acres in Michigan. Wild hay was gradually replaced with “tame hay” as marshes were drained, and crops were planted. This session investigates the natural and cultural history of this oft-forgotten renewable resource, incorporating species identification, primary sources, historical poems and songs, and tools and equipment used during harvest, all relative to ecological preservation today.

Unvarnished History: Workshopping Difficult Subjects
Peter A Friesen, Director of Education Historic St. Mary’s City

This workshop will focus on improving techniques in the way we interpret difficult historical subjects such as sex, interracial relationships, crossing socioeconomic lines, illness and death. Through active conversation, readings, and small break-out mini-sessions, we will help build your interpretive toolbox. The workshop aims to help you look at your stories in a new light, or to look for sources in new places. Please listen to episode 3 or 4 of the “Reframing the Past” podcast to prepare for this workshop (https://aaslh.org/reframing-history).

Using Your Resources to Create Volunteer Interpreters
Dr. Shannon Hughes, Director of Education and Programming, Metroparks Toledo
Jennifer Elsworth, Historic Programs Supervisor, Metroparks Toledo

Volunteers supplement the workforce at many nonprofits, but training may not prepare them for the roles they fill. Utilizing your site’s resources and implementing basic interpretive techniques can increase volunteers’ skill sets, give them confidence, and strengthen their appreciation of your site. Participants will learn how Metroparks Toledo trains volunteers as interpretive rovers, docents and trail-patrol members. An NAI Certified Interpretive Planner and Certified Interpretive Trainer will lead this interactive session utilizing the SHINE coaching acronym.

Noon-1:45 Pasta Buffet Lunch and ALHFAM Town Hall
All conference participants are invited to attend, voice their opinions, and hear the responses about shared subjects of interest. Attendees should come prepared to explain why they spend their time and money to participate in ALHFAM, and what they think they need to continue to make the investment. The pasta buffet will also include a gluten-free option.
A More Perfect Union: Interpreting for Positive Change in a Divided Nation
Ron Carnegie, Nation Builder, Colonial Williamsburg Foundation

Many claim that states have never been so divided, that news has never been so biased, and that recovery seems impossible. Yet, the Federalist era (1788-1800) was marked by division, factions, partisan bickering, foreign manipulation of American politics and policy, internal rebellion and dissent. The “Founding Fathers” sometimes lamented and sometimes fomented dissent. Colonial Williamsburg addresses this by interpreting civic responsibility and compromise, among other topics considered essential to “a more perfect union.” Learn how you can develop mission-driven and content-rich programs to help visitors pursue positive change.

Living in Plain Sight: African American History at Walker Tavern Historic Site
Laurie Catherine Perkins, Ph.D., Southern Lower Peninsula Site Historian, Michigan History Center

Research and new exhibits at Walker Tavern near Brooklyn, Michigan, shifted focus away from the white agricultural narrative and toward Native Peoples and African Americans. Learn how the exhibit team documented 350 African Americans living and working in plain sight of pro-slavery tavern owner Sylvester Walker. This has rewritten the area’s history from being an epicenter of Michigan’s anti-slavery movement and a thoroughfare for the Underground Railroad to being a destination. How this will affect community relationships remains to be seen.

Amplifying Voices: Building Community Partnerships
Daniel Cockrell, Director, Old State House Museum
Aaron Loehndorf, grounds Curator and Collections Specialist, Shiloh Museum of Ozark History
Susie Marchand, Agricultural Education Coordinator, Shelburne Farms

Panelists will share strategies that each used over several years to launch and sustain partnerships that build community relationships. Each will address the reasons for pursuing community engagement as well as the expected and unexpected outcomes that resulted. Some sought visibility and support. Some found mutual benefit in sharing responsibilities for events and programming. This session will help you determine needs, identify potential partners and connect with them today and into the future.

A New Interpretation for an Old Museum
Tom Kelleher, Historian and Curator of Mechanical Arts, Old Sturbridge Village

Old Sturbridge Village’s “Foundations of Interpretation” project, funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities, seeks to expand living-history programming and techniques as OSV approaches 80 years of bringing history to life. Content centers around four themes (identity, food and agriculture, public and private life, trade and exchange) as key to a comprehensive history of everyday life in early-nineteenth-century rural New England. This case study can help attendees rethink their own interpretive goals, so that the past resonates with visitors.

Accessibility: It’s Important! What Can We Do to Make Our Sites a More Accessible Place?
Kelly Krogmeier, Senior Interpreter, Conner Prairie
Kelsey Van Voorst, Education Manager, Conner Prairie

This session focuses on the work Conner Prairie has been doing to rethink the meaning of Accessibility in its DEAI promise statement. What improvements can our museums make to engage with the deaf and hearing-impaired community, the blind and low vision community, folks with dementia and Alzheimer’s and their caregivers, and those who need sensory support. What can attendees do at their sites to engage with these audiences and further accessibility?

Becoming a Better Storyteller
Ellen Gasser, Interpretive Consultant

Storytelling is a powerful way to connect visitors to history and culture. In this interactive workshop, participants will learn how storytelling can be used in museum programming, discuss sources for good stories, and learn techniques to tell compelling stories that will captivate their audiences and make their programs more memorable. This furthers ALHFAM Skills Training and Preservation because interpretive skills, especially oral storytelling, can rejuvenate museum staff and help them continually improve their abilities to connect with visitors.
Biosecurity in the Museum Setting: Just a White Whale?
Ryan King, Livestock & Agricultural Specialist, Conner Prairie
Stephanie Buchana, Director of Agriculture Initiatives, Conner Prairie
Emily Nyman, Livestock & Agricultural Specialist, Conner Prairie

Providing interactive animal experiences while preventing the spread of zoonotic diseases took on a new urgency during the pandemic. Learn from Conner Prairie staff how they designed and implemented policies to ensure biosecurity in a museum setting and gained staff and administrative support for the effort. Then, discuss solutions that can ensure the future of agricultural education despite challenges posed by space limitations, funding, facilities and other issues.

Making Living History: Panel Discussion on Costuming Challenges
Meg Furler, Independent Costume Designer
Kay Demlow, Lavender's Green Historic Clothing
Kelly Arlene Grant, Port Royal Habitation National Historic Site

Presenters in this session are all experienced costumers intent on addressing challenges that living historians face through costuming. Each will share successes and suggestions for resource management and guest engagement. Topics will include budgets, research, diversity, sustainability and advocacy. Attendees are strongly encouraged to participate so all realize the goal of connecting living historians to solutions for clothing-related issues.

Walking the Walk: A Workshop on Creating Sustainable Living-History Programming
David Fowler, Regional Director, Oklahoma Historical Society
Ed Schultz, Master Historic Farmer, Colonial Williamsburg

This workshop shares a clear-minded approach to developing living history at historic sites and open-air museums. Presenters draw on their experiences with Colonial Williamsburg’s Historic Farming Trade (Ed) and Oklahoma Historical Society’s Hunter’s Home (Dave) and convey leadership perspectives that resulted in conscious, deliberate and a well-thought-out yet flexible approach. Participants will be able to apply techniques they learn to develop and sustain living history.

Biodiversity in the Kitchen: Baking with Ancient and Heritage Grains
Alisa Crawford, International Miller, Maiden Mills, Holland, Michigan

Our ancestors used ancient and heritage grains because that was what was available. Now we can intentionally choose them because we are interpreting a particular time period and want to accurately recreate historic receipts, or we want to help preserve biodiversity, or both. Learn how to distinguish between ancient heritage grains, determine grains grown in your region, and try your hand at new ways to use old grains in your foodways program. Become a preservationist in the kitchen!

Developing Core Documents for Heritage Organizations
Jim Lauderdale, Museum Supervisor, Fort Nisqually Living History Museum
Kathy Dickson, Director Museums & Historic Sites, Oklahoma Historical Society

Many heritage organizations lack core documents that reflect museum industry standards. These include a mission statement, an institutional code of ethics, a strategic plan, a disaster preparedness and emergency response plan, and a collections management policy. Workshop participants will review and evaluate examples (both good and bad) and discuss how to draft or refine documents to meet your institutional needs. Presenters will offer one-on-one advice and share hints from other organizations such as AASLH’s Standards and Excellence Program for History Organizations (STEPS).
Sunday, June 25, 2023

Afternoon 4-Hour Concurrent Sessions
2:00pm - 6:00pm

Patternmaking for Tinners

Mic Ruynon, Master Tinner
Maximum: 10

Through demonstration and practice, participants in this workshop will learn how to make patterns that tinsmiths follow to construct tinware. They will be learning the principles of Parallel and Radial Line Developments, along with discussion of various seam and wire allowance requirements. Using this knowledge, we will look at tinware and learn how to identify the different seams and tool marks for the purpose of making reproductions. The participants will then be walked through how to obtain the information needed from a photograph or original object and will practice laying out patterns. There will be tinware and photos on hand from which to make patterns. Participants are welcome to bring objects they would like to pattern. As time allows, these patterns can be started, and participants can receive hints and advice on completing them.

Non-Heritage Inn guests: On your own (Holiday Inns include breakfast)

8:00am - 6:00pm  Conference Registration Table Open at Sauder Heritage Inn

8:00am - 9:00am  ALHFAM Professional Interest Group (PIG) Meetings for
F.P.I., Historic Foodways, Machinery and HiTS

ALHFAM Professional Interest Groups support ALHFAM members interested in exploring and sharing information on specific topics and skills. All conference participants are invited to attend the PIG(s) of their choosing. Today’s PIG meetings included First Person Interpretation (F.P.I.), Historic Foodways, Machinery, and Historic Trades and Skills (HiTS).

Morning 75-Minute Concurrent Sessions
9:15am - 10:30am

Collaboration is Key: Working with Partners to Create Inclusive Programming
Katie Nowack, Manager, Ohio History Center Programs, Ohio History Connection
Lyn Logan Grimes, Manager, School & Inclusive Community Programs, Ohio History Connection
Andrew Hall, Manager, Ohio Village Programs, Ohio History Connection

During the pandemic closure, Ohio History Connection’s programming staff worked to develop new character storylines for Ohio Village (including Columbus’ 1890s Black history), expand partnership with local communities and hire a diverse interpretive staff. The results are a guide post we want to share to encourage development of inclusive public programs.

Butter Churns – Not Just Your Grandma’s Dash or Dazy Churn
Tom Vance, Board President, Five Mile House Foundation, and editor of Midwest Open Air Museums Magazine

This session explores churn history and churn types (1840s-1940s) as described and advertised in primary sources. Take-away ideas will be shared for adding more types and technical variations to your interpretive framework, increasing visitor involvement, and adding fun to butter-churning activities. Attendees will receive a timeline "churn chart" featuring distinct designs and inspiration to reinvigorate churn programming.

Flamethrowers, Guns, and Tanks: Building a Safety Program for Your Site
Aaron Shuman, Museum Experience Coordinator, National Museum of the Pacific War

The National Museum of the Pacific War’s WWII living history program has a unique set of challenges that prompted staff to develop safety and training programs. The programs address risk management, safety protocols, volunteer training and procedures for annual review and revision. Attendees will walk away with a firm understanding of the importance of safety at their site and a roadmap towards developing a written safety plan that protects their volunteers, staff and visitors from harm.

A Primer on Using Google Books as a Tool in Your Historical Research Arsenal
Kevin Carter, Interpreter Coordinator, Historical Foodways, Conner Prairie

Google provides immediate access to published historical primary and secondary sources previously inaccessible to all but a few cotton-gloved individuals. This workshop is a primer on how to use Google Books for historical research. It addresses creating, organizing, and managing a personal digital research library, creating citations, using time-constrained searches and accessing print versions in their entirety or in clips. The speaker will share his Goggle Books public library to help participants prepare their own digital libraries.

Morning 75-Minute Concurrent Sessions (continued)
9:15am - 10:30am

Revolutionary Narratives: Connecting Museums to Semiquincentennial Resources

Sara Evenson, Doctoral Candidate in History, University of Albany
Hilary Miller, Public Historian with the National Park Service/Instructor at Quincy College, Massachusetts
Anne Lindsay, Associate Professor of History at California State University, Sacramento

This session focuses on the U.S. Semiquincentennial (2026) and addressing challenges posed by the lack of funding and ever-shrinking resources. How can public historians ensure a robust Semiquincentennial? Participants will discuss challenges faced, programming and interpretation potential, and opportunities to support living-history institutions as they address the 250th anniversary. This session showcases distinct perspectives of academic and public historians (including front-line living history interpreters) with the goal of bridging the divide and collaborating for the Semiquincentennial.

Morning 75-Minute Concurrent Sessions
10:45am - 12:00pm

60-million Views and Counting: Creating a Global Educational Platform through TikTok

Emaly Allison and Amy Caponigro, Heritage Interpreters, Kline Creek Farm, Forest Preserve District of DuPage County, West Chicago, Illinois

TikTok is all the rage as a new educational outlet for museums and historic sites around the world! This session focuses on how TikTok and other social media increases virtual and in-person visitation, community connection, and new audience engagement. Topics include social platforms, trends, content choice, account management, the balance between social media work and the day-to-day of interpreters and launching TikTok for your site.

Re-Interpreting the Dyckman Farmhouse Museum

Katie Boardman, Principal Cherry Valley Group and Adjunct Assistant Professor, Cooperstown Graduate Program in Museum Studies

This session focuses on reinterpreting a 1784 Dutch farmhouse in Upper Manhattan. Intentions about presenting fresh significance and meaning guided the process focused on: sharing new research about enslaved people; turning a colonial revival interpretation into an active center for engaging and challenging storytelling; teaching about growing food in New York City; and creating a welcoming place for multi-cultural communities. Hear how staff eager to test new ideas, approaches, and programs put online planning to good use.

Collection Cataloging – It Can’t Be Automated but It Can Be Streamlined

Ron Kley, Partner, Museum Research Associates
Jane Radcliffe, Partner, Museum Research Associates

Drawing upon 100+ person years of experience with the generation and use of museum catalog records we will outline a 12-step process for transforming a backlog of uncatalogued material into a cataloged collection.
Monday, June 26, 2023

Morning 3-Hour Concurrent Sessions
9:15am - 12:15pm

Wear This Not That: Ways Real People Made Plain Clothes Pleasing
Marna Jean Davis, Designer/Historian for The Domestic Lady’s Dressmaker

Using extant garments, we will look at ways that everyday folk made their clothing people-pleasing in the nineteenth century. Volunteers often object to historic clothing because it looks too plain to their modern eyes. Find historic ways to build an eye-catching working wardrobe. These well-researched simple clothing improvements will help improve a site’s historical impressions.

Michigan’s Worst Cheese and How to Make It
Jonathan Kuester, Director of Historic Wagner Farm (Cow expert)
Laurie Catherine Perkins, Ph.D., Southern Lower Peninsula Site Historian, Michigan History Center (Michigan historian)
Betsy Urven, Independent Living Historian (Wisconsin cheese connoisseur)

Around 100 years ago, Michigan political barons held rural and urban populations hostage with cheese! Learn how this cheese was re-discovered and get a chance to make and taste the cheese that ruled Michigan. Learn the political and environmental impact of this simple farm-made product and take home the skills to become a cheese baron in your own right. Participants will make a fresh cheese, taste a properly aged version and learn the history of this forgotten chapter of Midwest history.

Renewing the Connection: Techniques for Handling Livestock That Work with Nature
Barbara Corson VMD, Retired Veterinary Pathologist, and Historic Farmer
Steve Opp, Sauder Village
Claus Kropp, Lauresham Laboratory for Experimental Archaeology

Maximum: 10 – Register for hands-on experience only

This workshop focuses on housing, herding, handling and restraining livestock (horses, cattle, small ruminants and pigs) based on the natural behavior of the animals. Domestic animals were/are essential to historic and renewable farming, but few people are skilled in animal handling using historic or renewable technology. Industrial agriculture minimizes human/animal interactions or relies on technology to manage animals that overpowers nature, i.e., industrial housing, petroleum-based machines, corporate-scaled pharmaceuticals, artificial insemination and genetic engineering. Knowledge and skills of animal handling can make or break small-scale farming programs. This workshop transmits education and experience in safe and humane domestic livestock handling to a historic farm setting. The hands-on portion of this program will be limited to 10 pre-registered ALHFAM attendees, however all others are welcome to observe and join in the discussion.

12:15pm - 1:00pm Taco Bar Lunch Buffet
(Gluten-Free and Vegetarian options available)

12:45-1:45 ALHFAM Business Meeting
All conference participants are invited to attend and participate in the business of ALHFAM and also learn more about upcoming conferences.
Economy and Global Influences: Exploring the Impact of World Trade on Local Tastebuds in the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Centuries in North America

Ryan Beckman, ALHFAM Historic Foodways Co-Chair, Senior Interpreter at Conner Prairie

From “cheap” foods with Indian inspired curries, exotic homemade “mangoes,” gilded fruit cakes and everything in between, we will explore how financial constraints and worldly influences dictated what was served on an average plate in the first 250 years after contact, as well as how Indigenous and African cuisine influenced the average table. This presentation is meant to dispel some myths that early American food was a silo of bland, unspiced “English” cuisine but rather a true map of the greater world in which they lived.

Unscrewing a Screwsed-up Interpretation

Jane Radcliffe, Partner, Museum Research Associates
Ron Kley, Partner, Museum Research Associates

This session shares our account of a bogus interpretation at a site of international significance, specifically, the 34-room Roosevelt “cottage” at Campobello Island in New Brunswick (governed and administered by a unique U.S./Canadian international commission). Representing the site as FDR’s presidential office in a “summer White house” setting was a deliberate historical hoax. This session focuses on how we deconstructed and reconfigured site interpretation and learned about the rationale that “justified” the inaccurate representation.

We Found an Archaeological Site on Our Property. What do We Now?

Mark Latham, Cultural Resources Specialist, Burns & McDonnell Engineering Company, Inc.

Imagine you just plowed an area to plant in buckwheat and uncovered broken pieces of pottery, glass, brick, stone flakes, and fire-cracked rock. What do you need to do now? Led by an experienced archaeologist, participants will learn: What comprises an archaeological site; who owns it; what justifies recording a site with the state; what kinds of protections are required for archaeological sites; what to do to protect your site and the artifacts associated with it; and how to research and document your site.

Reaching New Audiences: Expanding Interpretation at the Seton Shrine

Rose Gallenberger, Visitor Experience Facilitator, Seton Shrine, Emmitsburg, Maryland
Savanna Hastings, Visitor Experience Facilitator, Seton Shrine, Emmitsburg, Maryland
Lisa Donahue, Museum Educator, Seton Shrine, Emmitsburg, Maryland

The museum at the Seton Shrine is unique among living history museums because it is run by a religious organization. Rapidly growing programming prompts the question of how we can expand our audience base. This session shares current efforts to extend our reach (redefining the site as a place of women’s and educational history; revising third-person tours; updating the orientation film; researching new programming; adding living history; and launching the Junior History Interpreter program) and determining next steps.

Swatch me Dudley, Swatch me!

Beth Payne, Director, Dudley Farm
Kandie Carle, the Victorian Lady

The Dudley Farm received a scrapbook of late-nineteenth- and early-twentieth-century fabric swatches in 2022, created by one of the Dudley women! Several pieces are annotated, documenting who and how they were used for domestic clothing and upholstery. Presenters will share farm and female history and fabric types and uses. Tying the timeline of the fabrics to the economic ups and downs of farm life adds a new dimension to interpreting farm family experiences.

Afternoon 75-minute Concurrent Sessions
3:00pm - 4:15pm

“Why wear a dress when I can wear pants and carry a gun?” Why Indeed!
Kandie Carle, Victorian Lady, K & C Enterprise

This roundtable discussion builds on that quote from the 2022 ALHFAM fashion parade. We need to face it. Gender and sex as reflected in clothing for interpreters, docents, volunteers, staff and outside program presenters is an issue begging for a session. Let’s go there and work it out! This roundtable discussion will engage participants, asking them to consider: “What does inclusion mean for costuming and clothing gender non-conforming and gender-fluid living historians?” Join us and join the discussion!

Copyright Pitfalls and Practice Tips
Brenda Kruse, Attorney at Law, Shumaker, Loop & Kendrick, LLP

In this session, the types of intellectual property – patents, trademarks, trade secrets, and copyrights – will be introduced. The central focus throughout the session will be on copyright issues associated with museums. Pitfalls and practical tips related to programming, exhibits, and advertising are included. In addition, an overview of copyright infringement and the most common applicable defenses will be provided.

Fire Follows the Axe: Climate Change and the Lumber Industry in the Upper Great Lakes in the Nineteenth and Early-Twentieth Centuries
Rob Burg, Environmental Historian/Interpretation Specialist

Climate change is not new. The Great Lakes region experienced change as the lumber industry destroyed forests. Cutover lands suffered from wind and water erosion which compromised the freshwater basins. Slashings fed wildfires in Michigan, Minnesota, and Wisconsin during the 1870s to 1920s. Reforestation, forest preserves and conservation slowed clearcutting and returned some acreage to woodland. Attendees can transfer this to the time periods they interpret and consider how their site relates to past environmental change and current concerns.

Regenerate your Workplace: Coaching Staff, Co-workers, and Volunteers
Lauren Muney, interactivity specialist, ALHFAM STP Committee

Coaching people to do new projects, encouraging more creativity with staff or vendors, or getting someone “unstuck” is within reach. The coaching techniques in this session help the other person, or an entire group, reach the next steps faster, easier, and more creatively.

Using a few key phrases and learning small techniques, participants can renew any workplace, communications, and even relationships. In this session, they learn simple yet powerful concepts to work better with staff, vendors, co-workers, volunteers - even perhaps in one’s own family too. Coaching is not manipulation or persuasion and is not directive (commanding). Coaching conversations offer compassion and respect for the other person’s knowledge, and intuition and is designed to help the other person (or group effort) grow.

This workshop will open the door to more fruitful conversations, especially for managers trying to teach volunteers or new employees or developing new ideas with colleagues. The techniques develop empathy, interest, non-avoidance, appreciative inquiry, values, non-violent communication, and trust.
Monday, June 26, 2023

Afternoon 90-minute Concurrent Sessions
4:30pm - 6:00pm

Interpreting Challenging Topics: Abortion in Historic Context
Kari Barley, Curator, Alabama Agricultural Museum
Kay Cynova, Historian, Stuhr Museum of the Prairie Pioneer
Kathy Dickson, Director, Museums and Historic Sites, Oklahoma Historical Society
Michelle Evans, Domestic Trades Manager, Conner Prairie
Jennifer Frazee, Director Fort Gibson Historic Site
Debra Reid, Curator of Agriculture and the Environment, The Henry Ford
Moderator/Facilitator: Kerry-Leigh Burchill, Director General, Canada Agriculture and Food Museum

Each panelist will present time- and place-based information essential to understanding the topic of abortion in historic context. They will address the subject across time (pre-contact, colonial, territorial, national), circumstance (pre-marital, pharmaceutical, morality) and within racial, class, occupational, ethnic, and personal autonomy (or lack thereof) context. They will explain historic tensions (private vs. public; science vs. morality; ownership vs. freedom, female as feme covert or “we the people”). The session ends with a group discussion that addresses how to document challenging history, prepare staff to address questions prompted by current events or social issues and sustain positive interaction in a safe space.

“I can scarcely bear the weight of these raiments”: Men’s Summer Clothing, 1790-1870
Thomas G. Shaw, The Clothing Bureau

This session focuses on garments worn, textiles used, and construction features employed in men’s summer clothing, 1790-1870. Sources (portraiture, photographs, contemporary statements, period newspaper advertisements and original garments) confirm what men wore and how they wore it. Men used the clothes to maintain social propriety, protect themselves from the sun and pursue their everyday activities in some degree of comfort. Participants will analyze common articles of men’s clothing and discuss strategies to add summer clothing to programming.

What Happened to my Barbie Doll? The Care of Plastics in Museums
Clara Deck, Conservator, 3d Conservation LLC

Plastics are everywhere! Cheaply produced and widely used since the late-nineteenth century, most museums have rubber and other plastics of some kind. Many are inherently unstable and require special care. This workshop includes a comprehensive history of the development and use of plastics, identifies traits of basic types, shares practical collections care strategies, and demonstrates two standardized tests to identify two of the most unstable kinds of plastics. Attendees are welcome to bring an example for discussion and will learn how to assess their own collections and plan for longer-term management.

Insights on Running a Profitable Dinner Program
Kevin Carter, Interpreter Coordinator, Historical Foodways, Conner Prairie

This panel discussion addresses what it takes to implement and sustain a dinner program. Panelists will discuss how to establish interpretive goals, select a menu, source ingredients, budget accurately, work with your local health department, train staff and add-on activities that can turn a dinner program into a memorable guest experience. It will help both beginners thinking about starting a dinner program and experts seeking fresh ideas.

Grass is Always Greener: Managing Pastures when Space is Limited
Ryan King, Livestock & Agricultural Specialist, Conner Prairie
Stephanie Buchanan, Director of Agriculture Initiatives, Conner Prairie
Emily Nyman, Livestock & Agricultural Specialist, Conner Prairie

As historic sites formed, grazing space received little to no consideration. This presents a challenge to sites with livestock: How do we graze our limited pasture while keeping livestock and forage healthy? Presenters will discuss strategies to manage pasture and sustain forage (rotational grazing, forage health, parasite control, sacrifice lots). These practices support living history sustainability because, if done right, they regenerate soil health, limit hay consumption, and educate guests on practices essential to environmental stewardship.

Afternoon 2-Hour Concurrent Workshop
2:00pm - 4:00pm

Traditional Coppersmithing: Making A Copper Pint Beer Müller
Stephen Okuley, Traditional Coppersmith

Learn how a traditional coppersmith (one of the last in the United States) uses traditional techniques to make a beer müller. Attendees will see the process of making a copper pint beer müller from start to finish. Watch a demonstration of the steps from the pattern through to the finished product using coppersmithing and braizer techniques including a brazed cramped seam, shaping the body, tinning the inside, planishing, forming the handle and assembly.

Afternoon 4-Hour Concurrent Workshops
2:00pm - 6:00pm

Darryl Wines, Collections Technician, Simcoe County Museum
Pete Watson, Howell Living History Farm
Cliff Jones, Machinery PIG Chair
Jeremy Robson, Lambton Heritage Museum
Jim Slining, Tiller’s International
Steve Opp, Historic Farmer, Sauder Village

Once a core implement on farms across North America, walking plows abound in museum collections. Often misunderstood and under-interpreted, this is an opportunity for collections staff, curators, interpreters and farmers to explore the history of use and development of walking plows in North America. Participants will evaluate historic and replica plows, study nomenclature and accessories, and put their hand to the plow with a select number of working examples. Participants are encouraged to bring plows, pictures and questions!
